Regional highlights from the 2018 BC Child Poverty Report Card

In the Stikine regional district, 50 children live in poverty: one in four children. There are insufficient numbers for poverty rates for children in couple families, however, the child poverty rate for children in lone-parent families is nearly three out of five children. There is insignificant data on poverty rates for children in lone-parent families who have two or fewer children, meaning that poverty rates in this area are nearly exclusively showing for lone-parent families with three or more children. The poverty rate for these children is 6% higher than the provincial average.
